

Rolf Clement

Editor for Security Policy, former Chief Editorial Staff, Deutschlandfunk

High-Level Interview

German – Netherlands bilateral cooperation – a blueprint for European multinational partnerships

Wednesday, 28th November 2018, 09:20 – 10:00 h

Born in Stuttgart on 10 August 1953, married, three daughters, one grandson, passed the Abitur in Bonn in 1972, Bundeswehr (reserve officer) 1972-1974, studied law at the University of Bonn 1974-1980, correspondent for regional newspapers in Bonn (Mannheimer Morgen, Mainzer Allgemeine, Neue Osnabrücker Zeitung, Donaukurier Ingolstadt, Flensburger Tageblatt, Trierischer Volksfreund, Wetzlarer Neue Zeitung) 1980-1984, correspondent for NDR in Bonn 1984-1989, at Deutschlandfunk 1989-2017, head of the research department from 1993 to 2007, member of the editor-in-chief unit and special correspondent for security policy 2007 to 2017, editor-in-chief for European security and technology since 2017, freelance author for various media (inter alia the TV station Phönix) and lecturer at the Federal Government University of Applied Science for Public Administration (FH Bund) in Brühl since 2017.

Member of the Advisory Board for Internal Leadership Issues since 2002, spokesman for the German Army and Society Working Group, second spokesman for the Advisory Board since 2006

Member of the Study Group for Strategies at the German Council on Foreign Relations, winner of the 1999 Karl Carstens Prize of the Federal Academy for Security Policy, author of the books "50 Jahre Bundeswehr" and "Die Terroristen von nebenan" as well as the brochure "60 Jahre Bundeswehr", has acted as moderator for various institutions.